A PROCLAMATION. WHEREAS a convention, between the nited U States of America and his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias, was concluded and signed by their respective plenipotentiaries, at Washington, on the 22d day of July last; which Convention, being in the English and French languages, is, word for word, as follows: The United States of America and his Majesty the Emperor of all the Russias, equally animated with a desire to maintain, and to preanimated with a desire to maintain, and to pre-serve from all harm, the relations of good un-derstanding which have at all times so happily subsisted between themselves, as also the in-habitants of their respective States, have mu-tually agreed to perpetuate, by means of a for-mal convention, the principles of the right of neutrals at sea, which they recognise as indis-pensable conditions of all freedom of naviga-tion and maritime trade. For this purpose, the President of the United States has conferred full powers on William L. Marcy, Secretary of State of the Un states; and his Majes Emperor of all the Russias has conferred like powers on Mr. Edward de Stoeckl, Counsellor of State, knight of the orders of Ste. Anne, of of State, knight of the orders of Ste. Anne, of the 2d class, St. Stanislas, of the 4th class, and of the 1-on Crown of Austria, of the 3d class, his Majesty's charged'affaires near the govern-ment of the United States of America: and the said plenipotentiaries after having exchan-ged their full powers, found in good and due form, have concluded and signed the following articles:—

America.

Asymptotic The two high contracting par-

ARTICLE I. The two high contracting par-tles recognise as permanent and immutable the following principles, to wit: 1st. That free ships make free goods—that is to say, that the elects or goods belonging to subjects or citizens of a Power or State at war are free from capture and confiscation when found on board of neutral vessels, with the ex-ception of articles contraband of war.

2d. That the property of neutrals on board an enemy's vessel is not subject to confiscation, unless the same be contraband of war. They engage to apply these principles to the cormerce and navigation of all such Powers a States as shall consent to adopt them on their part as permanent and immutable.

ARTICLE II. The two high contracting parties reserve themselves to come to an ulterior understanding as circumstances may require, with regard to the application and extension to be given, if there be any cause for it, to the principles laid down in the 1st article. But they declare from this time that they will take the stipulations contained in said article 1st as a rule, whenever it shall become a question, to judge of the rights of neutrality.

ARTICLE III. It is agreed by the high con-tracting parties that all nations which shall or may censent to accede to the rules of the first article of this convention, by a formal declara-tion stiputating to observe them, shall enjoy the rights resulting from such accession as they shall be enjoyed and observed by the two Pow-shall be enjoyed and observed by the two Powshall be enjoyed and observed by the two Powers signing this convention. They shall mutually communicate to each other the results of the steps which may be taken on the subject.
